

Learning Outcomes

Course: Learning for and through wellbeing

- ✓ Participants will be in the position to transform their schools and classes into learning environments that foster all aspects of students' human potential harmoniously.
- ✓ Participants will have learned, both theoretically and in terms of practical methods, about various aspects of students' health, their interrelationships and ways of promoting them.
- ✓ Participants will be able to reflect upon and develop their role image and become more autonomous in personal as well as professional development.
- ✓ Participants will be equipped to develop their classes into learning communities, learning environments that support students' healthy development as human beings and learners.
- ✓ Participants will have become familiarized with a broad but integrated range of new concepts and practices that they can use in their daily work for quality development.
- ✓ Participants will have attained more knowledge about the Swedish school system and course participants' school systems.
- ✓ Participants will in practice, in a Swedish school, have experienced some examples of how students are taught in a Swedish classroom, both from the teachers' perspectives and from the perspectives of the students.
- ✓ Participants will have access to ideas and tools for international collaboration to support the developmental aims they have for their schools and classes.